LOCAL BREVITIES.

Get your straw hats at the Pilot Knob drug store.

There was a sort of union Sunday school picnic at Russell's grove on the Fourth.

The picnic at Goulding's park, with the incidental doings, was an evident success.

Physicians are complaining of the general healthfulness of the people of this section.

That is a splendid straw hat you have; where did you get it? Why, at the Pilot Knob drug store, of course.

The infant daughter of J. R. L. and Emma Williams died on Friday of cholera infantum, aged five months.

Hysterics, a melancholy symptom of serious monthly troubles, are cured by the use of English Female Bitters.

Judge Dinger passed the fiftieth year of his existence on Friday, in consequence of which event he "set 'em up" for his friends.

If you want your girl or your better-half to say you look just splendid, go to the Pilot Knob drug store and buy a nobby straw hat.

The masonic pin lost by Dr. Patton, and advertised in last week's paper, was found and returned to the owner by one of the show folk.

A dispatch was received here on Tuesday to the effect that the Ohio Court of Appeals has affirmed the sentence in the case of R. L. Lindsay.

Dr. Goulding has purchased the Guild piano used at the concert given under the auspices of the ladies of the Presbyterian Church last week.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church cleared $25.75 from their concert. Two hundred and twenty-five tickets were sold. The expenses were $18.75.

Charles Breitenstein's usually sober horse was frightened by firecrackers, on the Fourth, and ran away, taking a portion of Zwart's fence in its flight.

Mr. Samuel West, of Des Arc, received the rite of baptism in St. Louis, on Sunday, in the presence of a large congregation, the Rev. George Boulshier officiating.

The Rev. Mr. Wright was attacked with heart disease on Thursday night, but is now recovered. He is subject to such attacks, we believe, when he over-exerts himself.

The Arcadia Mining Company has made a tunnel and sunk a shaft in its manganese mine on the old Haywood place, and will introduce fans as soon as they can be procured.

Montano's New York Show, which gave exhibitions here, to fair audiences, on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, was not prepossessing in outward appearance, but gave a performance in some respects superior to companies of much higher pretensions. Montano is one of the best contortionists living; the single and double-trapeze acts are hard to beat, and the negro delineator is excellent. Montano has had bad luck, but he seems to act on the square, and we wish him a successful season.

Supposing that your name was Smith, what would you think of a pretty dining-room girl would remark: "Are you ready for Smith, Mr. Breakfast? We would say she was in love.

Muscle should be in every household, and any one can have it by buying a Smith American Organ, on installments or cash, of C. W. Handley & Co., Cor. 10th and Olive streets, St. Louis.

The expenses of the side-show attached to the New York Show, on Wednesday, were $19; receipts, $30. No wonder that dissolution was the fate of that concern, especially as a "two-cent" man boxed it.

John Roubidoux, a Frenchman, who has a had reputation, got into trouble with Coley Hill, at the Ironton House saloon, in regard to some drinks, and, becoming saucy, Coley hit him on the head with a beer-glass.

A tramp had his ankle crushed by a freight train at Tip Top, Sunday morning, while attempting to steal a ride. Dr. Berryman rendered the necessary surgical aid, and the man was taken to Carondelet on freight No. 4.

Judge Russell relates some experiences of early times in Iron county, which appear remarkable to the present generation. He says he shot 320 wild turkeys in one year, and that he once saw sixty two deer in a single shoot.

James Welch, a miner on Shepherd mountain, let off a blast, the other day, and did not get far enough away for safety. A piece of rock hit him on the head, knocking him senseless, but the injury was not dangerous, though severe.

The double-team of Daniel Mead started on a frolic, Friday, and ran from the show-ground to the court-house square, considerably taking a back street to avoid the crowds on the main thoroughfare. No damage done except to weak nerves.

The St. Louis District Conference of the M. E. Church, South, will be held at Hemet on Thursday and Friday, July 6 and 7, Bishop J. C. Granbery presiding. The opening sermon was to have been preached yesterday (Wednesday) evening by Dr. W. V. Tudor.

A small and select party gathered at the Academy of Music on Thursday night, to listen to the singing and playing of Miss Carrie Moss, of Fredericktown, a young lady who has a remarkably fine and well-trained voice. The evening was very enjoyable.

The daughters of Joe Huff made some jam recently, and set it away to cool. Two or three days afterward they went to inspect it, when a large snake crawled out of the jar. The reptile, which was dispatched, had made way with about half the contents of the jar. A jam curious incident, wasn't it?

On Monday night a squad of "boys"—and not an "awkward squad," either—complimented Ollie Reed with a serenade, on account of his recent marriage. There was a slight drawback, however—and a very serious one to the serenaders: Ollie was hard at work on the Knob, providing for his prospective family.

The proprietor of the side-show which traveled with Montano's show owed the latter for his "privilege." On Thursday night, after the show was over, Montano called on the side-showman for a settlement, which was denied; a wordy warfare ensued, and Montano finally knocked down his debtor. A warrant was sworn out, and Montano was arrested, and inducted in the sum of $18, including costs.

On the Fourth of July, twenty-eight years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Kesling were united in marriage, and from that time to this they have never been apart, except for about two months, when the head of the house thought he would show Scott county folks how to raise watermelons. The only really bad thing we know about Mr. Kesling is that he once ran for the Legislature; and Mrs. Kesling is one of the very best women that the writer ever knew.

Mary Miller, the poor, unfortunate girl, who has been in jail for the past month, on the nominal charge of willful neglect of her child whereby it died, had an examination before Judge Dinger on Monday, and was bound over to the Circuit Court in the sum of $500. Being a friendless creature, she could not furnish the necessary bond, and is doomed to four months' imprisonment as a vicious abandonment for another's crime. It is only a friendless woman who suffers; but we think it a case wherein justice might be righteously largely tempered with mercy.

PILOT KNOB AHEAD.—The large number of cases recently tried by Judge Dinger seems to have excited the emulation of Judge Hancock, who on Friday succeeded in disposing of no less than eight cases. Geo. Spitzmiller, for disturbing the peace, was fined $5 and costs in each of two cases. Henry Slater was up for furnishing a revolver at and disturbing the peace of his uncle, Henry Richter; assessed the costs in one case and $5 and costs in the other. Then came a series of cross-cut cases in which the facts were about as follows: Mrs. Elizabeth Hart is a woman who is given to letting her tongue run loose. On this account ill-feeling sprang up between her and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richter, which resulted in a bandying of epithets between the latter and Mr. Hart, and the swearing out of cross-warrants for a breach of the peace. The Richters were fined $5 and Mrs. Hart $3 and costs. G. W. Thompson was a "friend" of Mrs. Hart, though he has since married her, and he took occasion to make remarks about Mrs. Richter and her son, Charles F. Martin, which ended in a disturbance, for which Thompson was arrested and fined $3 and costs. Pilot Knob is now ahead.

VICTIMS OF MINE-DAMP.—John Sullivan, a workman engaged in the Shut-In mines, was badly hurt last Thursday night. While being drawn out of a pit sixty feet deep, and when half way up, he was overcome with the damp, and fell to the bottom of the pit, receiving serious though not fatal injuries. About the same time, three colored men, named Willis Cole, Tucker Sides and Brown Simpson, at work in the mines on Shepherd mountain, were also overcome by the damp.

Exhibition of the Ursuline Academy Day School.

The exhibition of the day school of the Ursuline Academy, which took place Wednesday afternoon of last week, was very largely attended, the people of this vicinity being more or less directly interested in the participants, and, as was the case at the previous day's exhibition, the audience was well entertained.

The programme opened with a march, which ushered in the scholars. Then came a song and chorus, "Welcome, Friends!" Then followed, in the order named, the prologue, delivered by Josie Zwart; a piano duet by Misses Ida Moser and Minnie Fraser; a drama called "The Two Mendicants," in which parts were taken by Misses Mary Patton, Effie Moser, Rene Zwart, Naomi Goulding, Clara Grandhomme, Ida Moser, Belle Whitworth, Della Lopez, Minnie Fraser, Marie Gratiot, Grace Tual, Annie Whitworth and Ella Haller; poem, "Kind Words," by little Mattie Kesling; duet on two pianos, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," Misses Effie Moser and Mamie Zwart; song and chorus, "Gently Sighs the Breeze," poem on "Strawberries," Katie Holson; music, "New Year's Greeting," Misses Naomi Goulding and Clara Grandhomme; a comic drama, called "The Organ-Grinder," played by Misses Rene Zwart, Mary Patton, Minnie Fraser, Ida Moser, Clara Grandhomme and Naomi Goulding, Masters George Moser and Bert Zwart; music, "Spring's Approach," Misses Effie and Ida Moser; poem, William Whitworth; tableau, "The Seasons"; "Blue Bird Schottische," Misses Minnie Fraser and Della Lopez; essay on "Youth," Miss Effie Moser; "Canary Schottische," Misses Naomi Goulding, Josephine and Margie Bakewell; essay on "Friendship," Miss Mary Patton; music, "Let the Dead and Beautiful Rest," Miss Effie Moser; tableau, "Too Late for the Cars," poem, Miss Julia Andrews; "Aurora Waltz," Misses Effie and Ida Moser; song and chorus, "Sweetly over My Senses Stealing," "Graduates' Coronation March," Miss Minnie Fraser; tableau, "The Graduates' Coronation," "Farewell Song."

Where all the participants acquitted themselves so well, it would be cruel to make invidious discriminations, but it is doing no harm to state that the essays of Miss Moser and Miss Patton, the graduates of the Day School, were well written, well delivered compositions, which bore evidence that the school hours of the authors had been profitably employed. The teachers made the following

Arcadia College has been in charge of the Ursuline Sisters since 1877. On the 27th of September, in that year, four Ursulines arrived from St. Louis, and on the 1st of October they opened school with four pupils, which number slowly increased, so that the whole number of scholars in the five years amounts to 170. The number of Sisters has increased to nineteen. Last year there were two graduates, one in the academy and one in the day school; this year there were two graduates in each school. The institution, therefore, is slowly but surely gaining in public favor and patronage.

HANGED IN EFFIGY.—A party of Pilot Knobbers executed Giteau in effigy on Friday. A scaffold was erected by John Ebrecht the space fronting the old depot, and at 9 o'clock in the morning a procession was formed, with a faithful image of the assassin in the van. When the place of execution was reached, the death-warrant was read, and the body swung into mid-air, John Ebrecht acting as executioner. After awhile, Dr. Thomas, acting as surgeon, held an autopsy upon the body, and decided that it contained nothing but straw. At night the effigy was burned amid the jeers of the people.

TO TAX-PAYERS.—The tax-books of the city of Ironton are now in the hands of the Collector, and tax-payers are hereby notified to "come down" with their quota of dollars immediately, if not sooner. There are some delinquent taxes which the parties interested had best settle ere it is too late. A number of polls still remain unpaid. Pay up, tax-payers! Now is the accepted and acceptable time.

PAUL PATTON, Collector.

A SQUARE INDORSEMENT.—The Potosi Independent of last week says: "Bro, Ake hits the nail squarely on the head in his protest against the appointment of the Presbyterian minister of Ironton to the position of principal of the public school at that place. The interests of the public schools will be best subserved by divesting them of everything that favors sectarianism."

Handley's Temple of Music—Pianos and Organs. C.W. Handley & Co., corner of 10th and Olive Sts., St. Louis, Mo. Send for catalogues and terms.

A Poetical Candidate.

A little while ago it looked as if Iron county would go unrepresented in the Legislature this year; there was a singular backwardness on the part of political aspirants in coming forward. Then Mr. Charles Hart, of Annapolis, offered to serve the county, and, having no one to contend with, sat under his vine and fig tree, looking out with equanimity upon the canvass of the candidates for the other offices. But the friends of Mr. T. G. Foley, of Bellevue, induced that gentleman to enter the field for Representative, and it was immediately discovered that there was to be no walk-over for the office. And now, to complicate matters, comes Mr. William T. Crocker, of the West End, who is at once farmer, preacher and poet, and proposes to enter the race upon the wings of the muses, as the following verses from his pen will attest:

Wake up, my boys, and cry aloud!
Look to the west—there is a cloud!
Although they say it means no harm,
Yet I'm looking for an awful storm.

Sometimes I rise above the wave,
And then I dig my country's grave;
But just before I get the shroud,
The doctor's voice cries very loud:
"I know my patient's very sick,
But he'll give Foley and Hart a kick,
And send them where they ought to be,
And give the country Crocker tea."

'Tis Crocker and his voters true,
A-going to see what they can do,
And, if in this they do succeed,
A better time they'll have indeed.

But now I judge, from what's been said,
They thought this glorious weed was dead;
But then there came a season rain,
And this weed sprang into life again.
Come, voters, now throw on your weight,
For now's your time to raise your stake;
For Crocker is the very man
To reduce taxation in our land.

Knob Notes.

Oh, these plaguery, pesky candidates!
Mrs. Jessie McFarland is visiting at Arcadia.

Dan O'Donnell and family, of Piedmont, are visiting relatives at the Knob.

J. Klug was presented on the 1st inst. with a handsome napkin-ring, the occasion being his birthday.

Mr. F. C. Miller and wife, teachers in the public school, are visiting friends at their former home, Piedmont.

The itinerant picture-taker, who has been located at the Knob for several weeks past, has boxed up his instruments and gone to other parts.

A somewhat aged couple at this place, having pulled together for some years, decided to legalize business and give their domestic life the stamp of respectability. They have therefore been formally married.

The Pilot Knob Union Sunday School will meet hereafter at 8:45 in the morning. Not only the children, but the young, the middle aged and the old are requested to aid in building up an interesting and profitable school.

Some saloons of Pilot Knob continue to violate the law on Sunday. It is strange that many citizens who abhor lawlessness in other forms, will wink at this evil, and some of them even prevaricate, if called upon by the grand jury.

The candidates came last week, and, as a consequence, the right hand of your correspondent is so disabled that he can hardly write. Messrs. Hart, Foley, Edwards, Huff, Hancock, Dinger and Edgar were all here. Should the successful aspirants make as good officials as they do candidates, the people will rejoice.

Mr. F. C. Miller, principal of the Pilot Knob Public School, reports the result of a portion of the last written examination in the advanced grade. Prizes were offered for excellence in scholarship, and the highest ten contestants were: Emma Kath, 94; Doris Sellar, 89; Anna Kath, 88; Minnie Ditt, 84; Carrie Weiss, 84; Mary Von Rodden, 84; Clark Curtis, 79; Wm. Wolf, 78; Philip Proentner, 77; Etta Beebe, 74; Belle Craig, 72. For excellence of written work, the highest four ranked as follows: Emma Kath, Anna Kath, Louisa Amelung and Doris Sellar. Emma Kath received the prizes for scholarship and for mechanical execution.

ORGANS!—ORGANS!—Smith American Organs, for sweetness of tone, rigid supreme over all others. C. W. HANDLEY & CO., Cor. 10th & Olive Sts., St. Louis.
